Spørsmål om øvelseskjøring med motorsykkel i Norge

I refer to your email on September 28th, and I am sorry that it has taken a long time to respond to you.

The requirements for accompanied driving practice in Norway are:

- The accompanying person must be at least 25 years old.
- Have held a license in the same category as the vehicle used for practicing for 5 years.

These requirements you meet. There are no specific requirements for the learner driver as long as they are over 25 years old.

The accompanying person can ride on with the learner driver or drive behind on his own heavy motorcycle.

It is a requirement that both the accompanying person and the learner driver are wearing a reflective vest, which shows the letter L to the traffic behind. This to tell other road users that there is driver training going on. There is also a requirement for two-way communication between accompanying person and the learner driver, if the accompanying person is driving behind on his own motorcycle.

If you bring along your driver's license, it will be good enough to document both age and the right to do accompanied driving practice. Good luck with the training.
